Dear John:

Each year NECA presents Zero Injury awards to contractors achieving exemplary safety performance during the calendar year. In 2009, there was increased participation and more award recipients; an indication that NECA contractors are continually raising the bar on safety performance.

Zero Injury award recipients are selected based on the lowest incident rate within their respective categories. The data is then compared to the Bureau of Labor Statistics using the Standard Industry Code 1731. Participants recordable rates must be at least 50% below the electrical industry SIC code to qualify.

On behalf of NECA, I would like to commend Main Lite Electric Company, Inc. for achieving the 2009 Zero Injury award. Your commitment to safety raises your company above the rest and we congratulate you on this achievement. This award reflects your dedication to following the industry's highest safety standards.

Sincerely,
